

...they're reborn...

... and they can't take it anymore.

... But then the bitter chills hit...

All when it seems like they're devoid of life...

In the summertime, the leaves are happily dancing in the wind. All seems well...

Huh...? How so...?

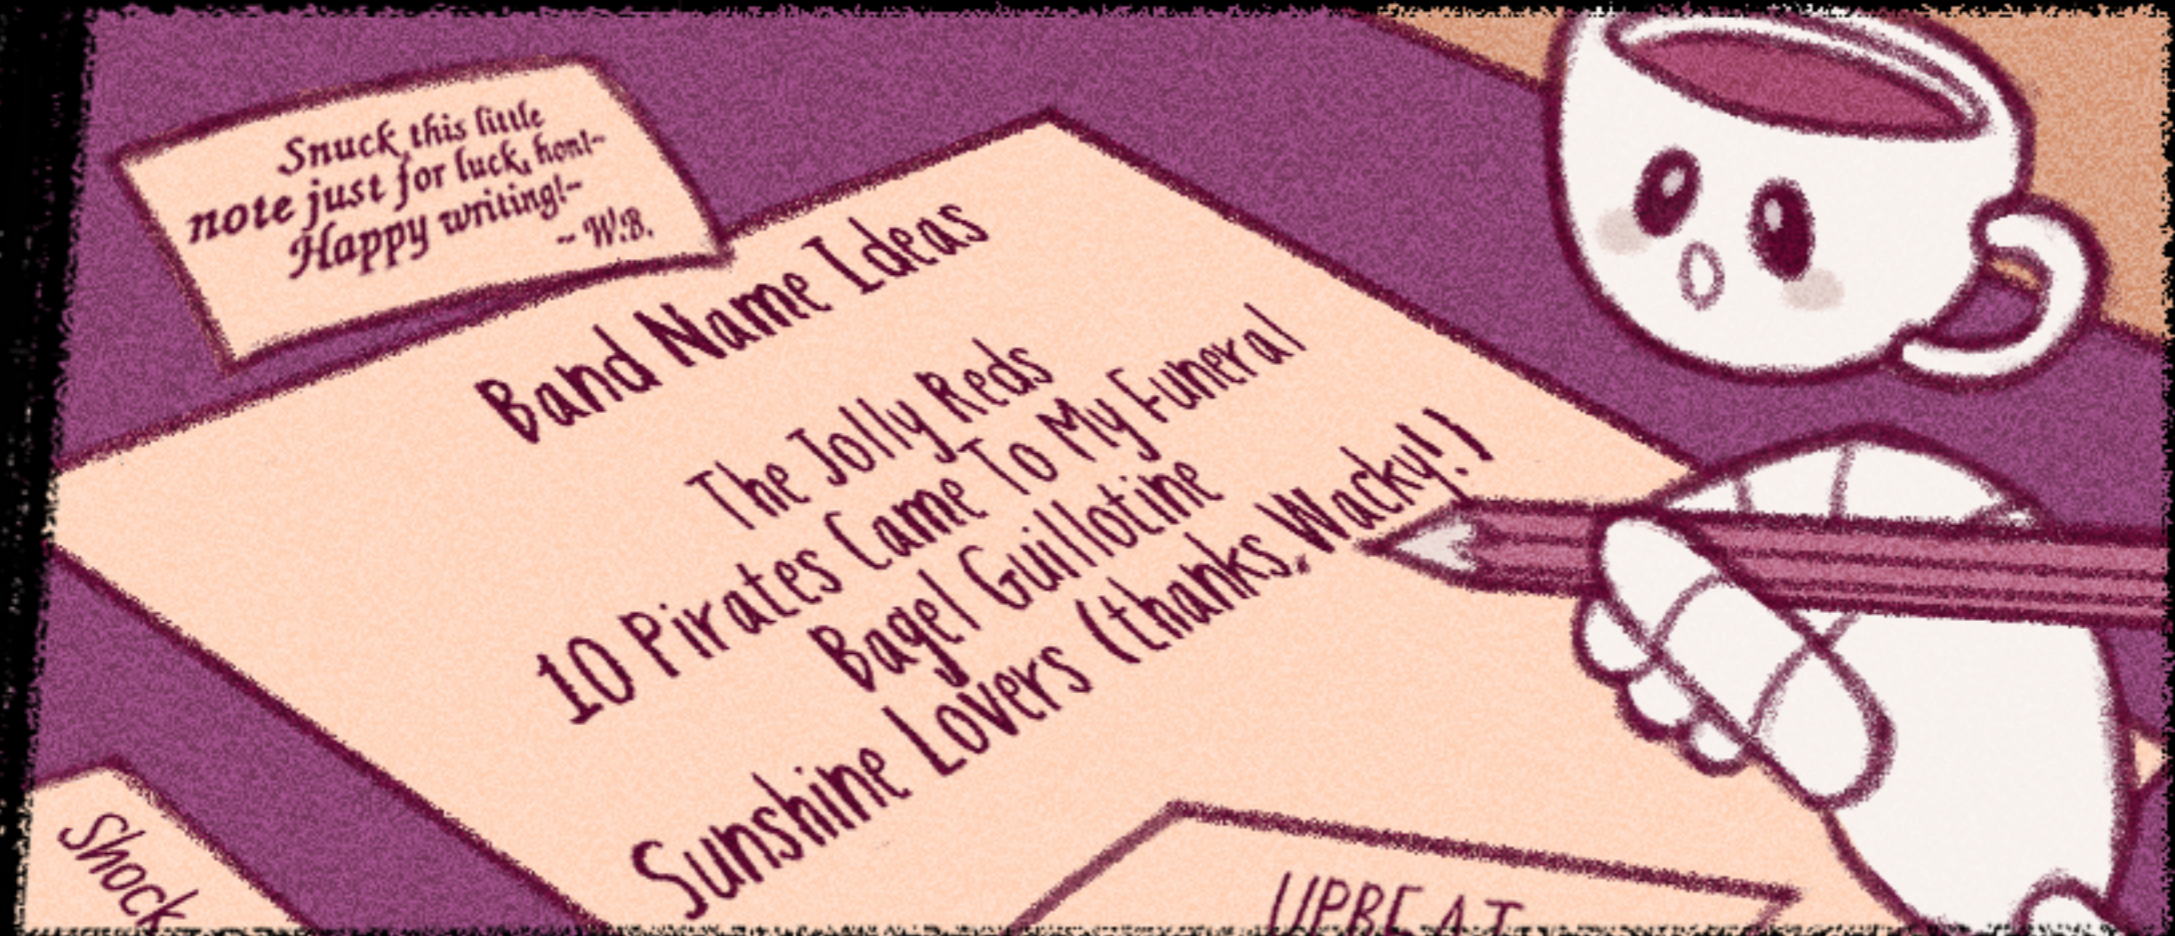

I'll tell it how it is...

Yeah, they're real stunners, kiddo. Not gonna lie. I sorta resonate with the blossoms.

Look, look! The blossoms are 5000 pretty!

I know there is a collective feeling of fear, anger, and hopelessness at the moment, and a lot of us have considered giving up. Don't do that. You have to live if you want to be part of the fight. Don't let hate take over. Together we need to fight for our right to exist. Even just supporting small artists of many different backgrounds is helping, as it gives us the motivation to continue.

I thank my closest friends and supportive family members for giving me the will to continue to push through life, no matter how tough it gets. I also thank just anyone who puts a couple of minutes aside to look at what I create. I've had this zine planned since a very low point of my personal life, and current events have only motivated me to push forward even harder.
